NETWORK OF UNDERREPRESENTED RESIDENTS & FELLOWS

NURF NEWSLETTER - AUGUST 2020

Welcome!

While 2020 has been a surprise for us all, we're happy you made it here. I'm thrilled to welcome our new NURF leadership board, and for those of you that are new or due back to about us, we are the Network of Underrepresented Residents & Fellows, a trainee-led organization here at the University of Washington Hospitals and Seattle Children's Hospital. Our goal is to improve the recruitment and retention of underrepresented minorities (URMs) in medicine through mentorship, community service, networking, education, and cultural competency. We welcome and support all trainees, regardless of race/ethnicity, belief, SES, and identity. Everyone is welcome to join us for our meetings, events, or happy hours, virtual and eventually in real life. This means anyone – Black, White, Indigenous, trainee, leader, or someone from kaiser. Literally anyone. Because we are here for you! Feel free to peruse our monthly newsletter, follow us on social media, or send us an email to say hello. Or keep doing your thing in the background, and know that you have someone in lot of someones, actually) to reach out to if you ever need us. While there are clearly a lot of things in this world that we can't predict, such as a mask couture, murder hornets, spectateless sports, and the long overdue Black Lives Matter protests, you should know that we are here for you.

IN SOLIDARITY,
ASHLEY EAVES
NURF PRESIDENT

NURF VICE PRESIDENT
PGY-2
UW Family Medicine Residency

"I am very much excited to continue my work toward recruitment, retention, and support of Indigenous learners and other people of color in health care."

Joseph is an enrolled member of the Confederated Tribes of the Yakama Nation and he grew up in a small, rural town along the Columbia River, where he played basketball and practiced his treaty rights fishing for salmon.

Fun Fact: Joseph enjoys paddle boarding and fishing
