Clerkship and Educator Feedback Summaries

Site directors were sent via email three reports for the clinical year 2020-2021:

- Family Medicine Clerkship exam scores and grades for the year and 4-year data – as a whole and by site
- Family Medicine Clerkship student's evaluation of clerkship summaries and details – as a whole and by site. The far right tab spreadsheet includes student comments specific to your site
- Evaluation summaries for each preceptor at your site that received evaluations in eValue for the year

Please be sure to share the relevant evaluation information with your faculty members. Please email us at fmclerk@uw.edu if you have any questions.

EOQ Meeting Talks

Edwin Lindo led a discussion called Deconstructing Biological Race and Enhancing Patient Care and Medical Education. He asked us to think about the changing and variable concepts of race, introduced some historical pseudo-diseases such as Drapetomania and linked those to modern racialized medicine.

High blood pressure (hypertension)

Risk factors

High blood pressure has many risk factors, including:

- Age. The risk of high blood pressure increases as you age. Until about age 64, high blood pressure is more common in men. Women are more likely to develop high blood pressure after age 65.
- Race. High blood pressure is particularly common among people of African heritage, often developing at an earlier age than it does in whites. Serious complications, such as stroke, heart attack and kidney failure, also are more common in people of African heritage.

One piece that resonated with many of us was the idea of racism and socioeconomic conditions as risk factors of disease. You can contact Mr. Lindo at eglindo@uw.edu.

Sarah Maitre (Valley Family Medicine, Renton, WA) commented: I share this resource with our residents and students: blackandbrownskin.co.uk. Put together by a UK medical student. Combines activism and education.

Dr. Iman Majd's talk was titled Integrative Medicine, patient centered care and best practices. How to discuss Integrative Medicine with colleagues and trainees. He shared several case studies to illustrate navigating difficult conversations with patients. He also encouraged preceptors to educate themselves about supplements to be able to educate and train students on their uses. You can download his slide deck here. For further reading, he recommended David Rackel's book titled Integrative Medicine. You can contact Dr. Majd at imanmajd@uw.edu.

Dr. Rich Kovar (Country Doctor Community Health Clinic, Seattle, WA) recommended the About Herbs mobile app. This app, created by the Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center, "provides comprehensive, objective information about herbs, botanicals, supplements, complementary therapies, and more."

Dr. Justin Bailey

Dr. Mary Barinaga

Dr. Kimberly Collins

Dr. Jay Erickson

Dr. Andrea Esplin

Dr. Eduardo Garza

This award is based on the FM evaluations from clinical year 2020-2021 that the students submit in eValue. The award considers the Overall Teaching Effectiveness numerical scores and comments submitted by students. About 600 educators teach in the FM Clerkship any given year, and we give six awards (approximately) each year. We only consider faculty that have at least four evaluations. Thank you all for your dedication to medical student education!

Program for Idaho medical students receives $12 million for scholarships

Source article from the Idaho Capital Sun linked in headline above; dated October 8, 2021

“...the University of Idaho is launching its first phase of a fundraising initiative called ‘Brave. Bold. A Promise to Idaho’s Students’ today that will prioritize funding scholarships for students, with a particular focus on the university’s medical school.

The Washington, Wyoming, Alaska, Montana and Idaho Regional Medical Education Program, known as WWAMI, is Idaho’s only medical school that is partially funded by state dollars. It’s also the medical school that produces the most rural physicians for the state, with incentives available for those who decide to practice in a rural area of Idaho.

The program is part of the University of Washington’s School of Medicine and is a top medical school for family medicine and rural medicine training, according to U.S. News & World Report. Every applicant who joins the Idaho branch of the program is an Idaho resident, said regional dean and director Jeff Seegmiller, which right now is about 40 students per year.”
